Customer Reviews

I took the PMP on 5/4/2012 and passed in just under 3 hours utilizing this text exclusively. I marked about 20 questions for review - and the lion share of those were either "tricky" or required serious math. I have 10+ years managing projects (no help on the PMP what-so-ever, in fact my experience was a liability) in IT departments in various companies and thus came to process with considerable bias, particularly because all of my project management experience is in the IT field. Below was my study plan: Allocated 3 months for the effort - during those three months: Mon-Friday read for 45 minutes during my lunch hour. Sat & Sun read for two hours each day in 4 30 minute segments. Read cover to cover - slowly, seeking understanding and avoiding "passing words under my eyes" as we're all prone to do. Memorized the formulas and other data they indicated that should be memorized. Saved attempting the end of chapter questions until the final days of study. Then studied the answers I got wrong - this was VERY VALUABLE. Thoughts on the text itself: 1. Not a boring read and actually held my attention. I enjoyed reading it and enjoyed LEARNING the information. 3. They take the time to explain WHY answers to questions are what they are, which for the PMP is invaluable because the test is all about application of knowledge and not memorization. My best study tips for this exam: 1. Study for real. This isn't a Microsoft exam - it's a serious test of the application of knowledge. 2. The test IS NOT about the PMBok. Read it - don't memorize it. You don't need to. 3. Learn the SEQUENCE of the processes of what to do/when/why and what you should end up with when done and nothing the exam throws at you will trip you up. 4.
