The 6 Most Important Decisions You’ll Ever Make: A Guide for Teens by Sean Covey: I have always been impressed by the published works of Stephen Covey, starting with his ‘7 Habits for Highly Effective People’ which I read in the late eighties, followed by ‘First Things First’ & ‘Principle-Centred
Leadership' around the mid-nineties. I have yet to read his 'The 8th Habit'. The most productive assimilative experiences for me from his success philosophies are essentially the first three habits (Be Proactive, Having the End in Mind, & First Things First) plus the last one (Sharpen the Saw). Because of my work with teens, I came to appreciate also his son (Sean Covey)'s published works, mainly '7 Habits for Highly Effective Teens'. In my strategy consultancy work, plus creativity classes with adult professionals & training in the schools with secondary students, I often recommend '7 Habits for Highly Effective People' & '7 Habits for Highly Effective Teens' respectively as mandatory reading. The feedback I get from them is always tremendously positive. I have come to know about Sean Covey's new book quite by chance while surfing the net. I manage to grab a copy from my local bookstore. The book is again targeted at a teen audience. In a nutshell, the principal theme of the book is how to make smart decisions for life's journey from teeny hopper to adulthood. The book starts off with a timely refresher on the 7 Habits as well as a fun & cool experiment, The Ten Year Time Travel Experiment. It covers the six critical areas:- school: what are you going to do about your education?; - friends: what type of friends will you choose & what kind of friend will you be?
